THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 11, 1874.

AN UNAVOIDABLE ISSUE.

The civil rights bill and the impudence of the negroes in their insolent demands have comented together the white people of Tennessee. In the eastern part of the State, the Radienis are united in denouncing the abominable bill which passed thesenate. Almost to a man the Radicals concur with Governor Brownlow in his furious denunciations of the civil rights bill. In West Tennessee the tax-paying people present the same unanimity. Certain it is in Shelby county, the white people were never more united in any canvass than they are at present. The Germans, the Italians, the Irish, the native-born Americans, indeed we may say every man with a white skin upon his back, has struck hands in a determination to meet and defeat the negroes and the adventurers who are using them to secure ment, and Tennessee with her fifty thousand majority of white, are determined that the State shall be ruled by the taxes and have made the State all that it is. As sympathy with our section and kindred compelled us to fection when it became a war of sections, so now, when every warning has gone unbeeded, and we find our late player-against whom we cherish no animosity, but in whose freedom we re joice, and to whose happiness and prosperity we would gladly contribute-arrayed under the lead of the pestiferous corpettogger in solid column against their natural allies and friends, determined to assume the control of the county, to make and administerits laws, we can no longer hesitate as to our duty. langered-for with the ascendancy of been asserted with an insolence that has suited and united the white people. The Caucasian race have sworn in their hearts that they will not tamely submit to be governed by an inferior raceto be raied by the negro, who showed, by his disgraceful conduct, at the decoration of the graves of federal soldiers, that he is incapable of cated and intellectual whites. is done, through the whole course of action there must be the plain evidence of a logical purpose, and the palpable indications of a severe yet comprehensive organization. We look forward with deep interest to the proposed county nominating convention. The excontive committee have acted wirely, eautiously, prudently, and if the convention adjourn in harmony, the election of the ticket nominated is an assured fact. We believe the county convention will perfect the organization which the executive committee has so admirably inaugurated. Let us have cision-a phalanx indeed which cannot be broken. The convention will throw around the timidly conscientions the obligations of a pledge; it establishes a subscrite to it; it makes of personal
